

AWARD-WINNING QUALITY

Since it's founding in 1988, Columbus Parent Magazine has received national recognition from Parenting Publications of America (PPA) and Suburban Newspapers of America (SNA) as one of the top parenting resources in the United States.

Columbus Parent Magazine is in the large circulation category, competing with cities such as Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles and Atlanta. Columbus Parent Magazine has been recognized with more than 20 awards in the past five years.

Established in March 1988, PPA is a national trade association of regional parenting publications that reaches from Seattle to Boston, Minneapolis to Miami, Canada and Australia. Headquartered in Los Angeles, PPA is a non-profit national organization representing more than 120 parenting magazines and newspapers. For more information about PPA, visit www.parentingpublications.org.

2009

- Gold: Best website design: ColumbusParent.com
- Gold: Special Section: 2007 Family Guide to Ohio Colleges
- Silver: Cover, original photo, newsprint
- Bronze: Headline writing
- Bronze: Interview, Katie Couric, April 2008

2008

- Gold: Special Section: 2007 Family Guide to Ohio Colleges
- Bronze: Cover, stock photo, newsprint
- Bronze: Cover, original photo, newsprint
- Bronze: Humor column: The Dad Files by Joe Blundo

2007

- Silver: Original photography
- Silver: Headline writing
- Bronze: Cover, stock photo, newsprint

2006

- Gold: Calendar of events
- Gold: Cover, original illustration, newsprint

2005

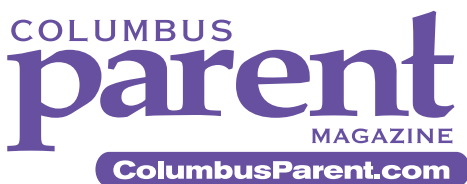

- Gold: Most improved
- Gold: Calendar of events
- Gold: Infographics
- Gold: Cover, stock photo, newsprint
- Silver: Cover, original illustration, newsprint
- Silver: Editorial special series

Columbus Parent Magazine was recognized by the Public Images Network for best article or series in a weekly or monthly publication for the article, "Motherhood Redefined: Transformed by Treacher Collins Syndrome," which appeared in our January 2008 edition.

Suburban Newspapers of America named Columbus Parent Magazine 2007's Best Parenting Publication

Suburban Newspapers of America is a broad network of daily and weekly suburban and community newspapers published by some of the leading newspaper publishing companies in North America. Representing nearly 2,400 newspapers with more than 22 million in circulation, SNA member newspapers are the dominant source of local news and local sports in the markets they serve.

Central Ohio's trusted resource since 1988